Dear Dwi Nur Ahsani, MD, M.Sc,

We would like to submit the enclosed manuscript “Inhibition of secondary metabolite extract of Streptomyces sp. on Plasmodium falciparum in vitro: A Study of soil sediment of Papua's Hamadi mangrove forest”. for your consideration for publication in JKKI Journal. The purpose of this study was to see the potential of Actinomycetes genus Streptomyces sp. as an antiplasmodial in the Hamadi Coast of Papua. This research was conducted in 2016. The study design was an experiment by determining the inhibitory concentration of secondary metabolite extracts from Streptomyces sp on the growth of Plasmodium falciparum. The results showed that Streptomyces' secondary metabolite extract from mangrove sediments showed a very good ability to inhibit the growth of Plasmodium falciparum so that it could have potential as a source of antiplasmodial.

The manuscript has been approved by all authors and has never been published, or under the consideration for publication elsewhere.

Sincerely,
